Talk cheap at a safe distance.

LEAGUE, OR NO LEAGUE.

Lay aside all purely political considerations and prejudices.

Forget for the moment that there is such a thing as the republican party, or a democratic party, or any other kind of a party.

Consider only the future welfare of the world in general and of the United States in particular.

Then ask yourself, Should America participate in the league of nations?

One of two things will assuredly happen. Either the league will become so powerful that it will dominate the world, or it will collapse and the unbridled passions and greed of nations will be let loose to plunge the world again into the hell of war.

If the entry of the United States into the league will operate toward its success and the elimination of future wars, then it would seem that our duty is plain in so far as participation is concerned, for assuredly no sane person desires to see a renewal of bloodshed.

We believe that a great majority of the people are of such a mind.

But there are certain conditions which should be imposed before the United States becomes an active member, or even a passive participant.

The United States must be the sole judge of its internal affairs and of the regulation of the question of immigration.

The covenant of the league should provide that whenever troops or funds are required for enforcing its mandates every country signatory thereto shall provide its prorata quota each in proportion to its population. In other words, there should be no loophole left whereby we could be required to furnish a greater number of troops or a larger sum of money than any other country, in proportion to our size.

When we are definitely and effectively assured against interference with our internal affairs, against discrimination in assessing the burdens of the league, and that its decisions will be made and supported upon a broad basis of justice to all and favoritism toward none, we can see no reason why the United States should not take its place among the nations of the world in an effort to avoid future wars and devastation.

Europe has plainly indicated that we will be welcomed into the league upon practically our own terms.

Surely there are enough brains in Washington, including both the government and the senate, to formulate terms that will adequately safeguard our own interests and still be fair and just to the other nations of the earth.

This is too great a country to suik along the sidelines when constructive statesmanship is in demand.

Mrs. L. F. Kramer visited Mobile Monday.

Soon, now, we'll be forgetting to write it 1921.

Miss Alice Frellsen will return home today from college to enjoy the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Frellsen at the seashore.

Misses Belle Bailey, Hattie Belle Meriwether and Miss Baker attended the Jackson County Teachers Association at Vancleave last Saturday.

Mr. William Bang, an old and respected citizen of East Pascagoula, died last Saturday night at his home north of the Pollock place. The funeral took place Sunday. Interment in the Catholic cemetery. Rev. Father B. O'Reilly conducted the services at the house and grave.

Big city newspapers are howling mightily over the awful crime wave. As an antidote they might come to this town and live in peace, plenty and security.

The good book tells us to love our neighbors as ourselves. But that, in certain cases, might be rough on the neighbor.

Some people are always complaining about the poor purchasing power of the American dollar. But even that has its advantages. It furnishes a good excuse for hanging onto them.

If there is a soul in this community without the wherewithal to get a good Christmas dinner he should have the dinner without the where, ec.

In the next world, perhaps, we will be able to shake hands with that old and valued friend we lament so much—a nickle loaf of bread.

Regardless of our well known affluence, we will be perfectly satisfied if our Christmas turkey is a rattling good chicken. Thank you in advance.
